Santa Fly-In

SANTA CLAUS flew in to the Valley Saturday safe and sound, with people waiting expectantly at the airport and then following the parade route through the village to the community center. The day's activities, in addition to Santa and Mrs. Claus hearing the Christmas wishes of children, included entertainment by the Carmel High School Band (bottom), music by Johnny Carlin's Jazz Combo (right) and floats created by residents of RSVP (middle).

Dissecting frogs

Dear Editor:

This year's dubious achievement award should go uncontestedly to Carmelo School and the teacher that has enabled her third, fourth and fifth grade students to successfully remove both the brain and spinal cord (for study) of a frog. I don't think I could sleep nights without knowing that we are encouraging children, elementary school babes, to dissect frogs, that were killed for this purpose.

Interestingly enough, this teacher calls her brainchild project "A Study in Life." Surely she knows the difference between life and death. My question is for what earthly purpose does a young child need to know how to tear a once-living creature apart? Diagrams, films of behavior patterns and feeding habits, habitat and the frog's niche in the ecosystem is a sufficient and much less destructive way to "study life."

Is this how Carmelo School is teaching its students reverence and respect for life? I can just see it now, "Daddy, may I have a dissecting kit for Christmas?" Well, what's next teacher? Can we learn how to kill the frog? and do you think we'll be ready to dissect a cat by the time fourth grade rolls around? And what after that? Carmelo School, reassess your values, for what you have done in the name of education is truly appalling.

Christmas wishes

Dear Editor:

The fire volunteer of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department want to wish the residents and visitors of Carmel Valley a Merry Christmas, especially those persons who have generously given donations to the Rescue Fund.

This year the Mid Carmel Valley Volunteers took responsibility for the traditional Christmas tree located on the southern slopes of Carmel Valley, south of Schulte Road. The volunteers recently spent an afternoon working on the 50' pine tree, replacing bulbs, wires and electrical hook up. The tree is lighted up every night from sundown until 2:00 A.M. The tree has brightened the Carmel Valley for the past 10 years, during the Christmas holidays, and until this year was maintained by long time valley residents Milt and Marie Frumkin, with the aid of donated funds.

The Mid Valley Volunteers also invite parents and their children to stop by the fire station during the holidays to tour the facilities and receive a candy cane. The fire station is located at 8455 Carmel Valley Road.

Master plan

Dear Editor:

At the first meeting of the Study Committee for revision of the C.V. Master Plan some of the members joined together to request that all projects in the Valley be stopped until their committee formulates a new Master Plan, which was estimated to be 18 months or longer. This is unfair to Valley property owners. Further, it is a dangerous threat to basic property rights. If a person buys a piece of land (and pays his property taxes), he, under the zoning laws and legal processes established by our democracy, receives the right to use and enjoy his property as long as he does not endanger the health and safety of others. No study committee should have the power to confiscate those rights from the taxpaying citizens.

The committee's justification for wanting this dangerous power is, "We need protection (against growth) while we're revising the Master Plan." We all are protected by zoning, by the existing Master Plan, by the County Health Department, Road Department, Public Works, Flood Control Dept., Planning Department, by a multitude of State controls and most importantly by public hearings at which any person or organization may submit valid reasons for his objections.

Maybe some members of the committee want to stop things without having any valid reasons. In fact, they have already delayed the Val Verde project indefinitely, and before the vote was taken one member admitted that she knew nothing about the project. Mr. Hooper, project engineer, explained that the work had been in process for two years, and that county researchers had put seven months of their expertise into investigations on the project. This was work of independent experts who explored everything on the project including flooding, health problems, possible dangers to the vegetation and wildlife, extensive studies concerning the traffic increase, percolation tests, ad infinitum. A public hearing, which would have given anyone an opportunity to voice his objections, was canceled and now the U.S. Post Office Dept. and the library in Carmel do not know if and when they will get a "yes" or "no" on re-locating by Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. They have a right to an answer. And the homeowners who live on Val Verde have a right to answer, whether it be "yes" or "no."

I would suffer no personal loss if building projects were canceled in Carmel Valley for the next 18 months. (The few home sales I handle on the Monterey Peninsula are mostly used homes, and there are hundreds of them available at any time.) But no Study Committee should have the power to take away an owner's property rights.

Master plan

Editor's Note: Following is a copy of a letter sent to Fifth District Supervisor Sam Farr. The letter writer requested anonymity.

I'm quoting another person who tells the joke about a fellow who introduced himself to a mule by whacking the allegedly-stubborn beast with a board. Asked why, the man explained: "I first need to get his attention."

The people of Carmel Valley need to get your attention, but we're not using the board! As you are aware our current zoning laws pertaining to our properties are well established as our protection against most of the evils of property growth, and many hours have been used in their approval. Suddenly we are faced with a new threat that supercedes any danger to date — the power a small committee has to overrule or intecede our current zoning laws. This certainly becomes a great danger to our basic rights.

There is a small group of "anti-growth thinkers" in our midst that are approving any and all kinds of delaying tactics, deferments and stumbling blocks to anything that opposes their interests. These, plus a few more who are sympathetic, are on your C.V. Master Plan Committee, and they pose a dire threat to the majority of the valley people who feel they have no representation on this committee.

The blunt fact is that these opponents to any normal growth activities look upon the open fields we have around us, and want them to stay "as is" permanently! Such a desire is somewhat understandable although it is entirely impractical, uncharitable, and, depending upon the tactics used in the fight, probably illegal! Their rallying cry is often distorted use of the currently-popular issues of ecology, environment and conservation. It simply adds up to wanting to keep people out.

You have been elected to represent all the people in your district — not just a small, vociferous group who claim they are the voice of the majority. Do not be misled by this! I would like to see a few common folk on your committee who are not fooled by those vested interests — some of the good, plain people who have been steady thinkers, and not some of the newcomers who, having gained foothold, wish to keep everybody who has a perfect right to live here — out!

Again, it is a dangerous situation to have any committee regardless of size to have the right to step in and halt our normal, legal and rightful activities regarding our properties simply by crying "wolf" to any and all normal growth patterns. Each request for a zoning change can be carefully checked by our Supervisors with proper public hearings in the usual way. Our zoning laws handle this.

What else can I say? Volumes can be written, but what good is that if the simple, direct issues are not faced? Before we throw the monkey wrench into our fine machinery let's be sure who is being threatened — the majority or a well-organized minority.

Horse feed costs

All right students, get out your little hand held calculators. We're going to have a session with basic math. Please! No muttering under your breath about bonehead math. Everyone needs to be able to do this kind of everyday arithmetic.

Last week we talked about how much it cost to feed a typical California horse at typical California prices. All the skeptics and feed cheaters immediately griped that they could feed a horse perfectly well on less money than that.

Well, let us calculate the cost of a number of different horse diets from the most expensive down to the cheapest. And we're going to make those calculations for the average California horse who weighs 1200 lbs. and stands 15 hands or taller.

The prices we will use have been supplied by Hacienda Hay and Feed and are of course, subject to change as market conditions change. For the last couple of years Carmel Valley has been fortunate in having a conveniently located feed store carrying a wide range of feeds. Now, don't tell this to the Zobel's who operate the feed store but we have checked around and their prices are not only competitive with other feed suppliers in Salinas and elsewhere but are often cheaper. And other feed suppliers aren't always as scrupulous about supplying good feed and giving a refund if a particular lot doesn't satisfy a finicky eater.

Purina Chow Company researches their feeds and markets a good product. They print right on the sacks, what to feed and how much; it's been thoroughly tested out. Purina Horse Chow Checkers, for instance, is a complete feed for idle horses. It contains Alfalfa meal, 20 per cent cottonseed hulls, ground grain sorghums, cane molasses, cottonseed meal, ground barley, phosphate, salt, vitamin A supplement and minerals. A 1200 lb. horse, providing he is worm free, in good health, never sets a foot outside his pipe corral, and doesn't waste a single ounce does well on 18 pounds a day.

Purina Horse Chow Checkers costs $7.05 for 80 pounds, so that comes to... that comes to, uh, let me see now, $1.59 a day. If you ever take that horse out and ride him, Purina recommends a diet for horses at light work: 18 lbs. of Checkers, one lb. Purina Horse Charge, and six lbs. of Purina Omolene (a mixed grain feed). Horse Charge costs $10.45 per 50 lbs. Omolene costs $11.40 per 100 lbs. That runs the feed bill for a riding horse up to $2.48 a day.

For a working horse such as you might take to horse shows or on all-day rides, Purida ups the Omolene ration to nine pounds. This raises the cost of his daily food to $2.83.

Of course, you may object to paying a little more for the Purina name, the cost of shipping in non-local feeds, and the Purina advertising budget. Albers Round-Up Pellets are a complete feed for an idle horse. They contain alfalfa, almond hull meal, ground corn, molasses, salt, corn, cellulose and other yum-mies. They cost $5.30 for 50 lbs. 18 pounds a day comes to $1.91. Add six pounds of Albers Trophy (a mixed grain feed) at $6.10 per 50 lbs. A lightly ridden horse costs $2.64. A working horse: $3 a day.

Local feeds can be cheaper if only because of the difference in shipping costs. Tom Zobel says he sells a lot of King City feeds. King City All-In-One horse pellets go for $4.60 per 50 lbs. A maintenance diet for a 1200 lb. horse costs $1.66. A lightly worked horse gets King City Horse Concentrate (a mixed grain feed) which costs $5.95 per 85 lbs. added to his diet. He now costs $2.08 a day to feed. A working horse: $2.28.

Now suppose you went to alfalfa cubes which is just pressed hay with no grain added. Calculate one and one-fourth pounds of hay plus one-half pound of grain per 100 lbs. of idle horseflesh. That's 16 pounds of alfalfa cubes: $1.22 a day when the cubes retail at $5.70 for 75 lbs. And for the grain, you're going to mix your own oats and corn instead of buying the prepared mix. Rolled oats costs $6.65 per 60 lbs. and rolled corn costs $7.90 per 75 lbs. The usual way of mixing it is two-thirds oats to one-third corn. Calculate oats at nine and a half cents a pound and corn at 10 cents, hmmm... 58 cents a day for graining an idle horse. And 87 cents worth of grain for the riding horse and maybe $1.16 worth of grain for the working horse... added to the cost of hay cubes this comes to $1.80, $2.09, and $2.38, idle, riding, and working horses respectively. And that doesn't include any salt of which the horse is going to need two or more ounces a day. By the way, barley costs and feeds exactly the same as oats.

Can you save any money by not buying pellets or cubes and just buying plain

Master plan meeting

Is the Valley a suburb?

Although they shuddered at the use of the word, the Carmel Valley Master Plan study committee bounced around the idea that Carmel Valley is a "suburb."

"At any rate, the committee observed, the Valley is no longer 'residential-farming,' as stated in the present master plan, last amended over 10 years ago.

The question of just what Carmel Valley is today came up at the Dec. 9 meeting of the study committee when member Don Middleton asked, "What are we trying to achieve here?" The committee, appointed last month, was holding its second meeting to deal mainly with organizational matters.

After discussion on development philosophy by committee members, a subcommittee of Bill Cranston, Robert Greenwood and Mary Ann Mathews was assigned the job of briefly defining what the valley is today and what the mission of the committee was. The three will report back with their findings at the Jan. 6 meeting in St. Dunstan's Church on Robinson Canyon Road.

The committee also set up its formula for subcommittees, although the make-up of the subcommittees will not be decided upon until January. The seven subcommittees are: transportation, hazards, natural resources, land use, socio-economics, growth management, and water and waste management.

Mid Valley firemen to play Santa Claus

On Friday, Dec. 24, from 12 to 3 p.m., Santa and his helpers will deliver toys to children living in the Mid-Carmel Valley area (San Carlos Road to Rancho Fiesta Road) through a Christmas project sponsored by the volunteer firemen in the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District. Toys will also be collected and distributed to needy children in the Monterey Peninsula area.

The volunteer firemen invite all parents living in the district to bring a gift for their child, plus an additional gift for the toy drive, to the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department by Wednesday, Dec. 22. The gift to be delivered to their child should be gift wrapped and clearly marked with the child's name and address. Delivery, in one of the department's fire trucks, is limited to one gift per child.

The gifts that parents donate to the toy drive may be of any value, new or used, but should be clean and in good condition. Donated toys should not be gift wrapped. The Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Department is welcoming donations of both new and used toys from the community at large. These gifts will be given to a local service organization for distribution to needy children.

Persons wanting more information about the Christmas Toy Distribution Program may call 624-5907.

Tina's rabbit tops show

Tina Crivello, 9, won a first place ribbon with her junior Doe Rex Rabbit in the Junior Class at the First Annual Rex Fur Traders All Rex Show in Castroville last weekend.

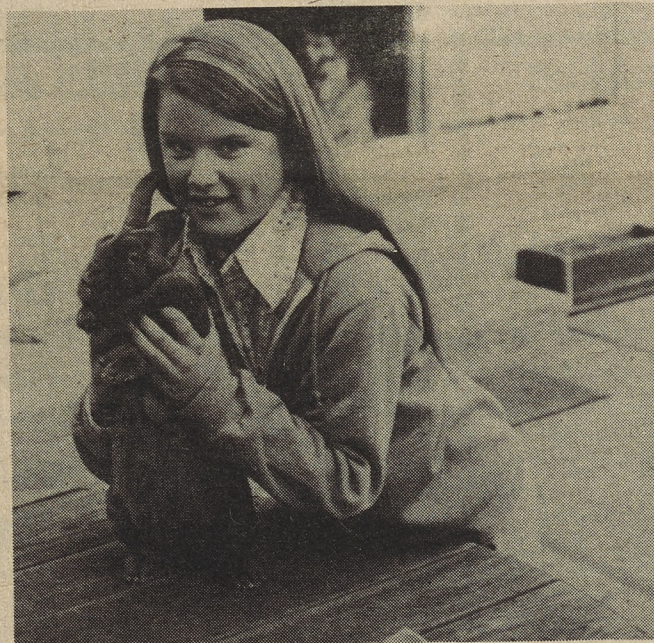

Tina, who lives on Berwick drive with her rabbits, duck, chickens, dog and — incidentally, her parents — also won Best of Variety for a Rosette in the same show.

Tina may be familiar to those who have seen her walking her mallard duck on a leash around the Mid-Valley Shopping Center (it flies home when it gets tired of waiting for her to get out of a store).

Tina has only been in the rabbit raising business for less than a year now, but has gone at it enthusiastically with the encouragement of her 4-H leader, Pat Bergin. Tina began with a pedigreed rabbit given to her by her uncle.

The pedigreed rabbit given her was not suitable for show, but its off-spring was. After a couple of championships, a rabbit can sell for as high as $200. Tina also keeps a mutt rabbit (no papers) around the yard.

hay and grain? Horse quality alfalfa sells for $1.10 per ton or $7 per three wire bale. Oat hay is $1 per ton or $6.25 per bale. It doesn't save any money to buy cattle grade of hay for horses even though it may be cheaper. Cattle with their four stomachs can digest much poorer quality hay than horses can. Horse grade alfalfa costs five and a half cents a pound whether you buy it by the ton or by the bale. Oat hay may sound cheaper at five cents a pound but often the horses throw it around and waste more of it while trying to eat the grain heads out of the hay first. Also oat hay is deficient in certain vitamins and minerals present in alfalfa. People who feed oat hay must also feed a vitamin supplement.

Feed prices: Alfalfa hay (not allowing any waste): 16 pounds a day costs 88 cents a day. Add the grain and the diets for the idle, riding, and working horses cost $1.46, $1.75, $2.04.

Say you were feeding oat hay plus a half pound a day Calf Manna supplement plus the required grain: Calf Manna at $9.75 per 50 lbs. adds seven and a half cents a day by itself. The feed costs: $1.46, $1.75, $2.04. By gosh! No savings over a no-waste alfalfa diet but be warned, in real life there's going to be waste. And more oat hay will be wasted than alfalfa.

We also like to give the horse at least one hot bran mash a week and preferably two to clean the sand out of his gut and generally tone up his digestive system. This comes to about four pounds of bran per mash at a cost of 40 cents per shot. Twice a week divided by seven adds 11 cents a day to our feed bill. Also we make a plain 50 lb. block of salt available at all times. It lasts from six months to a year and for a ballpark guesstimate costs about a penny a day.

A hot blooded, hard keeping horse may benefit from having fattening foods as a regular part of his diet. Alfalfa-molasses meal at $7.95 per 100 lbs. can substitute for up to one-third of the hay ration. This increases the cost of the daily hay ration from 88 cents to $1.05. A half pound of linseed meal at $13.40 per 100 lbs. would add seven cents a day. The hard keeper therefore could cost (hay, alfalfa-molasses meal, grain, linseed meal, bran) $1.82, $2.11 and $2.40 a day.

We also recommend a monthly worm medicine added to the feed at a cost of about $3 a month. Pro-rate that as 10 cents a day and while you're at it pro-rate the blacksmith at two cents a day (trim hooves every 60 days) or 30 cents a day (simple shoeing every 60 days).

File this Feedbag in the SECRET section of your horselover's notebook and never let the billpayer of the household see it.

Margot's friend

Telephone circuits were busy recently with calls between family and friends asking, "Have you seen the picture and read the article about Wayne Eagling in the Dec. 6 issue of PEOPLE weekly magazine. The story quotes a London critic who wrote following the Valley dancer's recent performance in "The Invitation," "He can outdance any of his predecessors."

Wayne, the son of Thelma and Ed Eagling of Loma Del Rey Drive, became an unwilling student of a local ballet class at the age of 13. Now 26 and a member of the Royal Ballet, he makes his home in London where he has recently purchased an interesting old home and is now enjoying the challenge of renovation.

His last visit home was in August when accompanied by a young ballerina from the Royal Ballet, Marguerite Porter, they combined their vacation with a memorable performance at Santa Catalina School benefiting Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

His sister Wendy Eagling returned from England last week where she visited Wayne and met for the first time her father's family in Norfolk. Wayne is currently traveling with a cast of five members who are known as "Friends of Dame Margo Fonteyn." He gave a performance in Norwich which was attended by eight of his British relatives who had not had the opportunity before to see him perform.

Born in Montreal in 1950, Wayne moved to California with his family in 1960. In 1966 he was seen by the Royal Ballet during one of their American tours and they recommended that he should go to England to study at the Royal Ballet School. He joined the Royal Ballet School later that year and graduated into the Company in 1969.

His long clean line set him in a class of his own among the dancers of the corps de ballet, and he was soon dancing solo roles. In 1972 came his first created role, the Brother in Kenneth MacMillan's "Triad;" later in the same year Jerome Robbins cast him in a leading role in "Requiem Canticles." He became a soloist in September of that year.

The following year he was to dance leading roles in two Balanchine ballets "The Four Temperaments" and "Agon." He made an outstanding debut as Romeo to Lesley Colliers' Juliet and the next year was chosen to succeed Anthony Dowell as des Grieux in MacMillan's full-length "Manon," dancing the role in London and New York. He created roles in "Elite Syncopations," "Four Schumann Pieces" and the Spring sequence in "The Four Seasons" and then his debut as Prince Siegfried in "Swan Lake" resulted in his promotion in the 1975-76 season to principal dancer.

His current roles also include the pas de quatre in "Swan Lake," "In the Night," Benvolio in "Romeo and Juliet," "Symphony" and "Scenes de Ballet."

A cover photo on the Spring issue of "DANCE in-au CANADA DANSE" magazine featured the young dancer who attended Valley schools and in her five page interview, Penelope D.R. Doob referred to him as "One of the most sparkling of the Royal Ballet's many brilliant dancers..." and paid tribute to his spontaneity and flair for discovering those special touches that highlight action and character that make every role curiously and distinctively his own.

Korean Choir to perform

A gift of music awaits those who attend the 4 p.m. performance Sunday at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel of the Korean Choir from Central Presbyterian Church in Monterey.

Chapel organist, Sunzab Park has made arrangements for the 25 young people to appear in their native dress, accompanied by D.D. Kim under the direction of Hae Joo Ahn. Their church, which began a year ago with a group of 15, now boasts 150 members. Their pastor is In Kee Moon.

The hour long concert, open to the public, will feature old familiar melodies with the words in Korean. Included will be "Oh Holy City" by Hip Sook Kim; "Oh Holy Night" by Gwang; "Jik Anon," as well as solos, duets, quartets, and even a Polish Christmas carol sung in Korean.

There will also be piano selections, including a Bach Concerto, presented by 16-year-old Hae Joo Ahn, an accomplished student of Sunzab Park.

Following Korean tradition, the host minister, Rev. Don

Johnson will give the benediction followed by a reception in Fellowship Hall.

WAY south of the border

A great place to improve your Carmel Valley accent in the last few weeks would have been on the Gulf of Mexico where, camped 800 miles south of Tijuana near Mulege on the Bay of Conception, was a group of local residents referred to by the natives as those "crazy gringos who speak only pigeon Valley-nese!"

So far from it all that a phone call to the Valley took two hours on a hand cranked phone, the group "survived" on nets filled daily with lobsters, scallops, crabs, clams and other ocean treats prepared by some of the best gourmet cooks in the Valley.

Enjoying the relaxation and Christmas shopping enroute home were: Charity and Dick Crane, Ward and Bruce; Myrna and Don Weber, Kris, Stacy and Don, Jr.; Mary and Bill Ijams, Terri and Mark; Linda and Bill Conlan, Florence Ann, Regan, and Leah.

Christmas dinner party

Guests who gathered in the Parish Hall of All Saints Church in Carmel — beautifully decorated for the holidays — were "Dreaming of a White Christmas" — during the community sing which followed the potluck dinner, the traditional "Christmas Band-Quet" for members of the Carmel High School Band and their families.

David Marcus entertained with piano selections during the dinner hour and the band presented a concert of holiday favorites while the enormous sheet cake trimmed with poinsettias and inscribed with "Merry Christmas" was served to the 150 in attendance.

During the gift exchange, a couroc tray in a Mexican motif — symbolic of the group's invitation to the spring music festival in Mexico City — was presented to band director Henry Avila and his wife, Mary, who were in charge of the Band-Quet.

Eskaton floats

"An old oak leaf cluster" to the residents from RSVP Eskaton who cleverly converted their wheel chairs into floats for the Santa Fly-In The CVCYC Board of Directors appreciated the imagination and workmanship that made the group led by Court Jester Paul Evertserg a party of the Christmas Parade.

Highly informative. Illustrated with 100 photographs (by G. Ashby Short and others). A Christmas gift. Out December 15th. Price 6.95. The author is a nationally-known writer. TELEPHONE TIPS

My name is Jack Head. I'm the Pacific Telephone Manager for this area.

In this column I have been giving you tips on how to get more for your telephone dollar. This time, I'd like to tell you how you can help us prevent what telephone people call DIG UPS. It won't directly save you money. But it will help you help us provide you with uninterrupted telephone service.

A DIG UP is an accidental digging up of a buried telephone cable. It puts one or many phones out of service for several hours or even days.

DIG UPS are caused by work crews digging along roads and highways, farmers digging near field edges, landscapers digging front or rear yards, fence builders, swimming pool builders, and many other folks using hand or power shovels, bulldozers and backhoes.

DIG UPS are easily preventable. Just CALL COLLECT in Santa Cruz, San Benito and Monterey Counties (408) 722-9261. Tell us where you plan to dig. We'll tell you if there is a buried telephone cable nearby. Or send someone to show you.

A toll free phone call from you may mean continued good service for you and many others. That can save money. Or even a life.

Thirty-nine Union students were involved in the program. The students were in Bath for 10 weeks, taking courses in British history, social sciences and architecture.

Michael B. Bollinger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar S. Bollinger of Carmel Valley, Calif.

MCDONALD
Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Daniel B. McDonald, 18, of Los Ranchitos, Carmel Valley, assisted in extinguishing a fire at a crab and salmon cannery at King Cove, Alaska.

He is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard cutter Rush, homeported in Alameda, Calif. The Rush is currently on a six-week long fisheries law enforcement patrol in Alaskan waters. The patrol was interrupted in order to join forces with another Coast Guard cutter, the Storis, Air Force personnel and cannery workers in extinguishing the fire by sending fire parties ashore with hoses. Within three hours the situation was under control.

His ship is conducting surveillance operations with Coast Guard aircraft to enforce international treaties and U.S. laws concerning fishing in the Gulf of Alaska in coordination with the National Marine Fisheries Service. Also his ship is taking a series of ocean water samples as part of a program to enable scientists to learn more about the current flow and sea water composition. The Rush is a 378-ft. high endurance cutter, designed for law enforcement patrols and search and rescue missions.

A 1975 graduate of Carmel High School, he joined the Coast Guard in April 1976.

Under the able management of Richard Howard, the Wishbone Restaurant opened in Carmel a few weeks ago. Also featured is a Senior Citizens Club (62 and over) with a 10 per cent discount card to assist those on fixed incomes. Located near the post office on Dolores, between Fifth and Sixth, the restaurant is favored by locals because of the good homestyle food at very reasonable prices. The buffet is only $2.75, and the variety is as follows: (however it differs from day to day) Home style french fries, crusty, crispy chicken, barbecued short ribs or plain short-ribs, beef ribs, sirloin beef balls in a creamy sour cream sauce, a great rice concoction, buttery rolls, selections from the salad bar, including carrot-raisin salad, greens, beets-onion, cucumbers in cream, apple salad etc., and a choice of lovely dressings. St. Dunstan's to dedicate needlepoint kneelers

Sixteen needlepoint kneelers, given in memory of Nelson T. Nowell and designed by Erica Wilson, well-known needlework designer, will be dedicated at the 10 a.m. Family Service at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church Sunday, Dec. 19.

The kneelers, depicting scenes of Carmel Valley, were completed this month after two and a half years of work and preparation by the Needlework Guild of the Church. Members of the Guild include Barbara Blevens, Ginger Brock, Jane Buffington, Marguerite Fisher, Marnie Gilchrist, Shirley Henry, Sabra Hudson, Edith Johnson, Marcia Lockwood, Ann Melching, Elizabeth Nowell, Helen Parker, Sarah Pease, Donna Rico, Gloria Stewart, Virginia Stoneson, Heidi von Pagenhardt, Marge Wenzlik and Mary Wilsey.

During the time Erica Wilson completed the designs, the group attended classes, led by Mrs. Nelson Nowell, in the various needlepoint stitches required by the designer.

The scenes of the Valley include a view of the Church nestled in the hills and adjoining the Carmel Valley River. The animal and bird life of the Valley, including quail, red-tailed hawks and owls, also appear in the designs. The Liturgy of the Good Earth will be celebrated at the time of the dedication, with a meditation entitled "All Ye Works of the Lord." The hymns for the service will include "All Things Bright and Beautiful" and "High O'er the Lonely Hills." A booklet describing the work of the Needlework Guild will be distributed after the service.
